MAKE YOUR

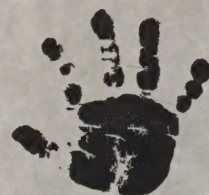

mark

You never remember them, do you? They are always with you but for some reason they're always the last to know. But think of all they do for you: talking, smiling, eating, laughing, singing, drinking, blowing bubbles, and cheering. Your mouth, your lips, the focal point of your face. They get chapped in the winter and some girls paint them daily. They pout when you're angry and part when you smile. We use them everyday whether it be grinning for the camera or screaming for our friends. As you look through the pictures of the familiar faces, notice their smiles and - Just Make Your Mark.

STUDENT LIFE

Seven hours each day we worked to earn good grades, but 119 hours each week we devoted to our personal lives. With the end of each day, at the close of each week, the parking lot overflowed with students and we departed to our different destinations. Some of us chose to show our spirit at football games and H time with friends, while lazy days or running th school held the same im created held more mean omecoming festivities; some of us chose to fill free some of us kept on the go. Whether enjoying the rough the crazy days, the lives we had outside of portance as our academics, and these memories we ing as the year began to draw to a close.

JUBILEE

from atlanta to nags head, we enjoyed the summer

- ◆ Atlanta, Georgia held the 1996 Centennial Olympics. Complaints arose over the ninety degrees heat and transportation problems, however people still cheered as the athletes held the attention of the world. Tremors rocked the Olympic Village at one o'clock in the morning of July 27 when a pipe bomb exploded, injuring 111 and killing two.
- ◆ TWA flight 800 crashed off the shore of Moriches, New York, killing all 230 passengers.
- ◆ 120 Woodson students and faculty gathered at Nags Head, North Carolina for the leadership retreat to plan for the upcoming school year. Special activities during the week included sand sculptures, tug-of-war competitions, committee meetings, and skits.
- ◆ Primate Binti Dua used her maternal instincts when she picked up and cradled a four year old boy who fell twelve feet into a gorilla pit at the San Diego Zoo.
- ◆ Emergency broadcasts warned people on radio stations in the D.C. metropolitan area twice this summer when tornadoes swept through the area.
- ◆ Republicans and Democrats met in San Diego, California and Chicago, Illinois for national conventions and official nominations.

Showing spirit at a summer swim meet, Jason Sclater, Mark Grose, and Jamie Sclater display their painted faces and stomachs.

Surveying the damages caused by the first tornado of the summer, Jeremy and Rachel Davis discuss the damage with Eric Riddles.

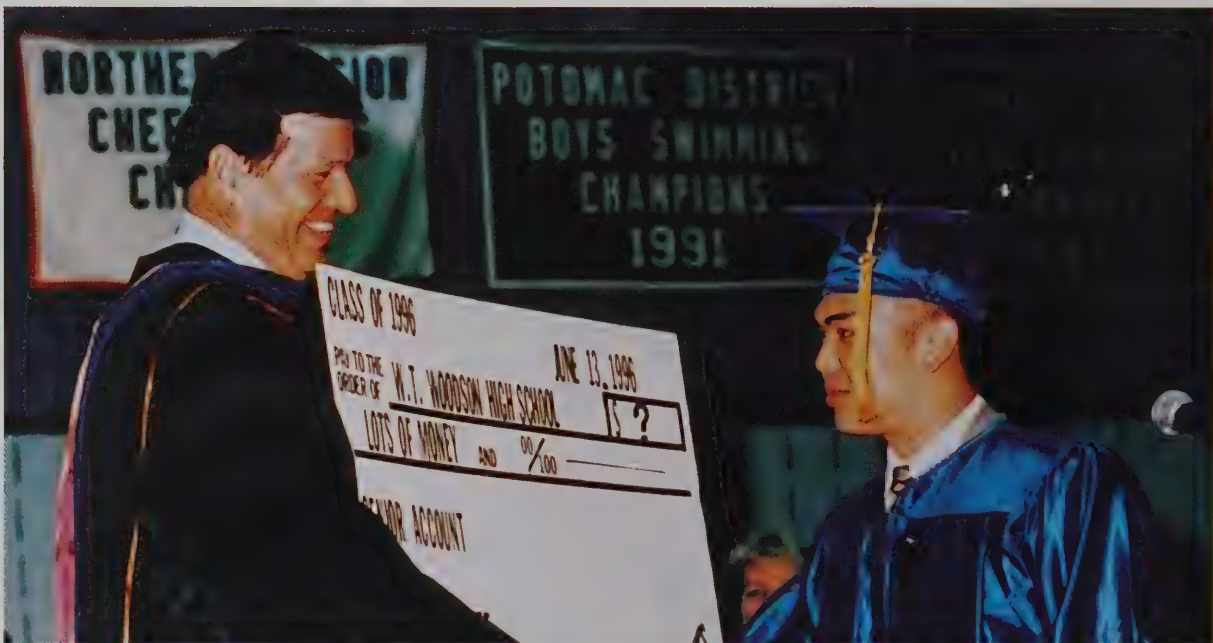

Wearing the colors of the rainbow, Eric Bergemann, Andy Boyle, and John Reamer strut their stuff.

Presenting Dr. Gary Miller with one of the two class gifts, David Lim turns over the remaining Senior funds to be used for athletic lights.

through prom and graduation we said our last

At the entrance of the Prom, Brett Unzicker and Pat Ryan give their tickets for admission.

- ◆ On June 7th, 1996, from 9:00 p.m. to 1:00 a.m., Fair Lakes Hyatt hosted the 1996 Prom.
- ◆ The Prom's theme was "Oh, What A Night!"
- ◆ The Prom's bill totaled $9200 for utilities such as the ballroom, the dance floor, and the food.
- ◆ Whether they came alone, with a group of friends, or together as a couple, 550 students attended the prom.
- ◆ Seniors graduated on June 11, 1996 at Fairfax High School.
- ◆ On Graduation day, 344 students in their caps and gowns walked out with their diplomas.
- ◆ Out of the graduating class, 118 (54.6%) attended in-state colleges in the fall.

Giddy with nervousness, Carrie Marvin laughs while Ryan Niethamer slips on her corsage.

ADVENTURE

- ◆ Students often went to relax at Bull Run, a popular campsite located in Centreville.
- ◆ Crossroads, a twenty-one and over bar replaced Dharma, the old hangout.
- ◆ A night of ice skating at the Fairfax Ice Arena costs $5.75.
- ◆ During their off season, athletes participated in weekend leagues to improve their skills.
- ◆ Students walked the malls of Tyson's Corner, Fair Oaks, Potomac Mills, and Springfield.
- ◆ Eighteen-year-olds had the opportunity to go to clubs located in Georgetown and D.C.
- ◆ Football fans watched the games, previously held on Friday nights, on Saturday afternoons.
- ◆ Tickets for a day at Kings Dominion cost $28.95 a person.
- ◆ Seniors spent some weekends filling out college applications.

MEET A MAJOR DIFFERENCE

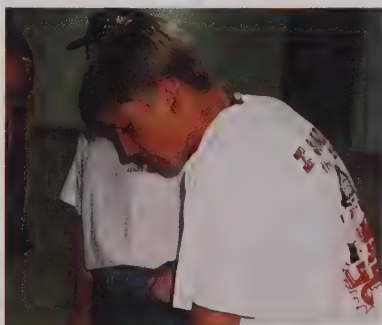

changing traditions, and new schedules brought

- ◆ 437 freshmen enrolled as the class of 2000.
- ◆ 91 new students entered the halls for the first time on September 3, 1996.
- ◆ At the Leadership Retreat, Potty Patrol organized with the purpose of improving our bathroom conditions.
- ◆ On the first day of school, only three people did not make it to school.
- ◆ Block scheduling started for the first time, with two different daily schedules - Red Day- even periods; Blue Day- odd periods.
- ◆ All Homecoming activities began with the parade at 8:30 A.M. on Saturday, October 26, 1996.
- ◆ Instead of hall decorating, students created homecoming floats for the first time since 1993.
- ◆ A new rule in the Student's Rights and Responsibilities handbook stated that tattoos denoted gang membership and required that they had to be covered up.
- ◆ The Morning Show broadcasted daily announcements over the television for a short time before the administrators decided against it.

Sitting in class, Aletha King recopies her schedule for her teacher.

Comparing schedules, Daniel Valenza and Luke Martonik chat in the halls.

- ◆ In the 1970's, the stadium held the pep rallies and the whole school gathered there to listen to the introduction of sports' teams on the track.
- ◆ Classes received chances to earn points for their class with competitions such as wheelbarrow races and three-legged races.
- ◆ Leadership planned bonfires ahead of time in order to excite the students about upcoming events and seasons.
- ◆ In past years on game days, cheerleaders would put together a short pep rally outside before school began.
- ◆ At the first pep rally, Hurricane Fran caused a power outage that lasted throughout the entire event.
- ◆ Having the pep rally after the first block resulted in a greater attendance than the previous years.

EVIL ADDS between powder puff, the carnival, and the bonfire, energy LIVE LOVE

- ◆ Students dressed up during Homecoming week to show their class spirit according to the following schedule: Monday-Pajama Day; Tuesday-Decade Day; Wednesday-Hat Day; Thursday-Season Day; Friday-Spirit Day.
- ◆ The Powder Puff games kicked off at six o'clock with the Sophomores' defeat of the Freshmen and the Seniors' defeat of the Juniors on Friday, October 25.
- ◆ A bonfire rally began at 8:30 with the burning of the Hornets' mascot.
- ◆ A parade went through the community from 8:30 to 10 on Saturday morning.
- ◆ The Homecoming carnival took place on Saturday, October 26th, from 10 to 1 in the courtyard.

Getting slammed in the face with pies, Frank Cha has fun at the carnival.

During the Powder Puff game, Cameron White, Erik Turberville, and Frank Cha entertain the crowd by being cheerleaders for one night.

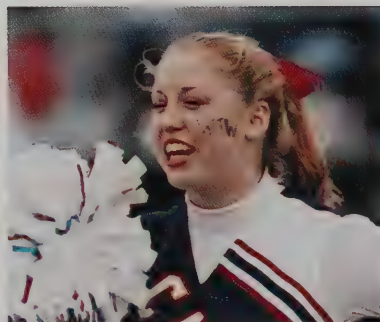

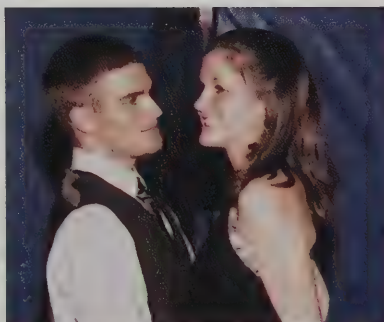

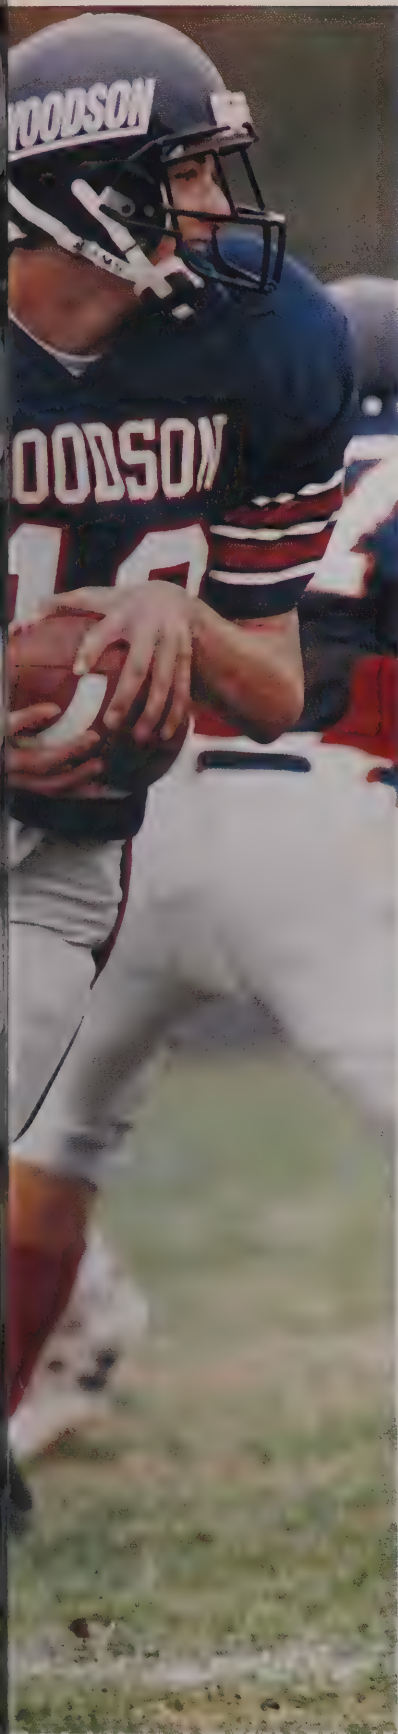

ROCKIN' through the game and dance we kept on ROCKIN'

- ◆ The football game hosted a larger audience than the previous years.
- ◆ People attended the Homecoming game at 1:30 PM on Saturday afternoon contrary to Woodson's tradition of evening games.
- ◆ The former Homecoming Queen, Christine Torrele, crowned the new King and Queen, Phil Blatt and Alina McCandless.
- ◆ Tickets sold for $15 per couple and $7.50 for a single ticket.
- ◆ The crowning of the King and Queen occurred after the half time performances.
- ◆ The Varsity football team played against the Herndon Hornets.
- ◆ Decorated in the theme of the four seasons, the small gym held the dance.
- ◆ Students went to the Homecoming dance on October 26, 1996 at 8:30 PM to 12 AM.
- ◆ The Class of 1976 attended the football game on Saturday for their 20th year reunion.
- ◆ The dance gained an hour, ending at what felt like 2:00 AM, as a result of daylight savings.

Riding the "choo-choo train," Drew Lamb, Carissa Collinsworth, Brian Urutia, and Mary Johnson dance the night away.

Handling the ball, quarterback Matt Kohlrus looks for an open teammate.

COMPETING FOR ULTIMATE VICTORY

- ◆ Seniors defeated the Juniors in the Powder Puff game 6-0, while the Sophomores crushed the Freshman 47-0.
- ◆ The Sophomore class won first place in the float decorating contest with the fall season followed by the Seniors with summer, Juniors with winter, and Freshmen with spring.
- ◆ During the pep rally class competitions, classes competed with the Dizzy Balloon Pop Race and the Powder Puff Quarterback Toss.
- ◆ Cafeteria B accomodated the daily class competitions of Homecoming Spirit Week as follows: Monday-Fluffy Bunny, Tuesday-tricycle races, Wednesday-a pie-eating contest , Thursday-a Limbo contest, and Friday-a pinata.
- ◆ The Sophomore class won first place in the Homecoming dress-up days competition.
- ◆ Each class painted murals, organized by the Potty Patrol, in various bathrooms for competition points.
- ◆ At the first pep rally, Seniors smashed the other classes in the three-legged race.

POKE THAT HOLE

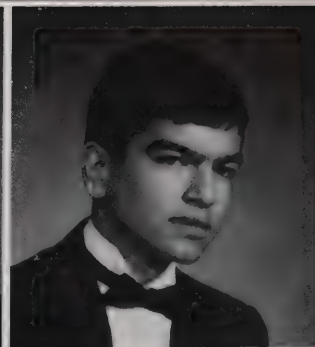

In the last few years, body piercing became more and more popular. Not only did girls wear earrings, but boys and even male teachers did too.

"It's a total turnoff. On guys, earrings are good but everything else is off limits," said Krista Donaldson. More people felt that they could express their creativity and originality through body piercing. Diana Sandin said, "I think if someone wants to pierce their body, then they should feel free to since it's their own body."

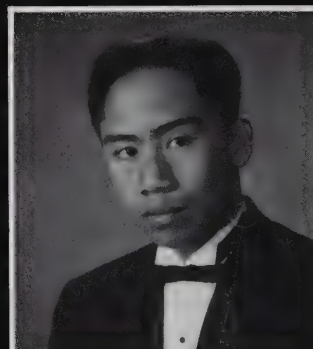

Brian Rosenquest said, "Certain body parts are good. Ears, noses, belly buttons, and eyebrows are cool, but anywhere else is just not good."

DISPLAY YOUR IMAGINATION

Month after month, the imaginative minds of art students spilled into the halls with a different student's art featured in the display case between the two art rooms in the E hall.

Jon Zanin said, "It's good because it gives you a taste of different people's art and it changes every month." The students that were chosen for the showcase were usually Seniors in Art 3 or Art Computer Graphics.

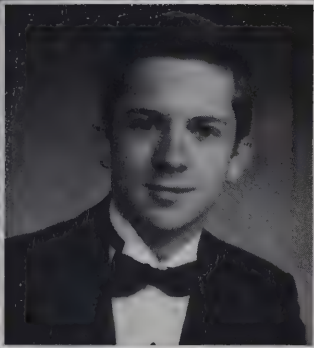

Kristen Harrison said, "I like people being able to see my work who wouldn't normally see it. It was strange to see my art on display, but I'm glad other people got a chance to see it."

HAIR, HAIR, EVERYWHERE

"I wanted to do something fun with my hair and I didn't want anything too drastic so I decided to try Glints," said Denise Wingerd.

Many people dye their hair every day and for many different reasons, whether they wanted to stand out, to look different, or to look good. It seems to be an upcoming trend to dye your hair all different colors. It all depended on the person and how they wished to be viewed.

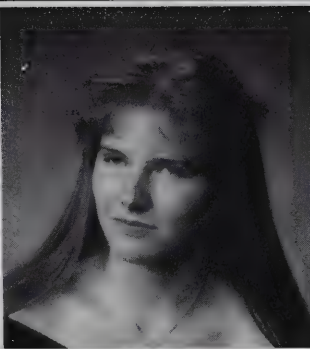

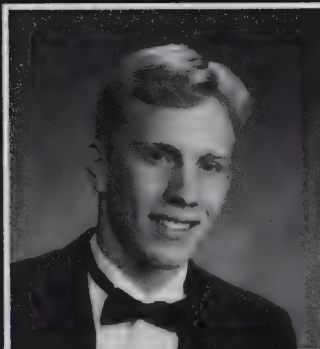

"When I was younger my hair was more blonde, but I felt that I looked better with my hair that way, so I dye it blonde," said Emily Rubin. Walking down the hallway, you can see everything from blonde highlights to hot pink sploches.

ROCK YOUR WORLD

After their graduation, the class of '96 left Woodson a large rock and a large problem. The rock caused a major conflict between the four classes over which class "owned" the rock.

"I paint it frequently and think it's a great idea," said Brandon Stacy. However, some people could care less.

When Steven Thomas was asked his feelings on the Spirit Rock, he said, "I don't even know what it is!"

While the wars over who gets the rock raged on, the class of '96 came back to make their mark by painting the rock. They symbolically tagged the rock with "You thought we were gone... '96."

BLUE SUEDE SHOES

Chunky heels, tennis shoes, and sandals in almost every style were seen parading through the halls.

"Some shoes are in style, but they're uncomfortable and people wear them simply for looks," said Missy Eboch. Many people placed fashion over comfort, but others placed function over form. Phil Gerrard said, "I don't think shoes matter, that's why guys only have one pair."

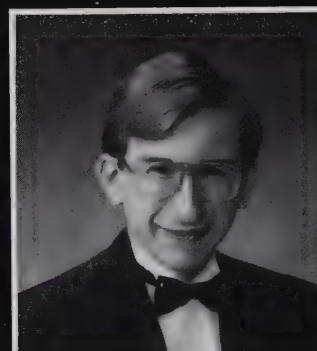

"You can get an original pair and try to make a statement, but then everyone else gets them," said Lauren Williams. So from those who set the trends to those who followed them, shoes created a personal statement.

MARKED BY BIRTH

Popularized in the early eighties by Mikhail Gorbachev, birthmarks became increasingly more popular.

"It used to be that everyone would hide birthmarks, now they're no big deal," said Dave Richards. Dave's birthmark located on his hip looks similar to the shape of Iceland. The mole became a popular birthmark, often imitated by the unmarked after super model Cindy Crawford made the mole her trade mark. Aaron Stein said, "Birthmarks set you apart. My mole defines who I am."

Nikki Piscitelli said, "Kids used to tease me about it and call me 'Hickie-Nikki'. It used to bug me but now its no big deal."

STRESSING OVER SCHOOLS

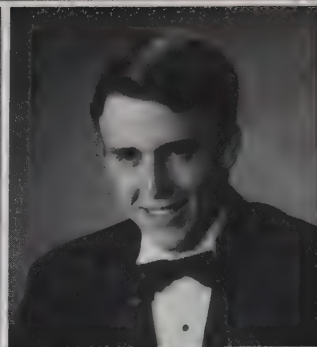

As the deadlines for college applications came closer, Seniors flocked to the career center and guidance office to finish in time.

"I knew it would take a long time, but I had no idea it would be as time consuming as it was," said Shirley Lee. Seniors found applying to be a whole new experience. Michelle Tilton said, "It's much harder to decide on which schools to apply to than I thought and waiting for a decision is stressful and long."

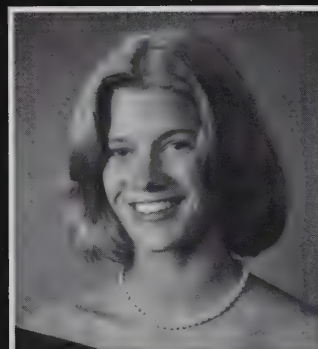

Others however knew what to expect. Stephanie Webb said, "I knew it would be a challenge to meet all the deadlines and come up with creative responses to essay questions."

MAKING IT COZY

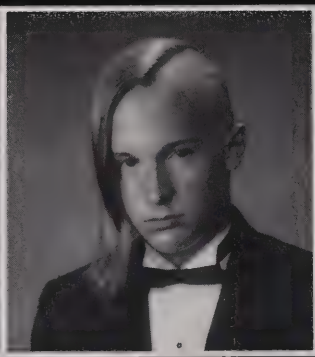

To decorate or not to decorate; that is the question.

"I think locker decorations are pointless, who'd put pictures in their locker? You only use it for two seconds in between classes; it shouldn't be an art gallery or anything," said Reuben Hubbart. Students filled lockers with photographs, mirrors, notes, and textbooks. Katie Wojo said, "Having pictures in my locker makes it feel like my own instead of just a hunk of metal."

Friends often decorated each others lockers for birthdays. Lora Hamerschlag said, "My friends put pictures of men in my locker for my birthday last year and I just haven't bothered to take them down."

UNDER LOCK & KEY

Food, entertainment, friends, and a live band all for 97 cents. Where could you get all of this and more? Why, the Senior lock-in of course!

More students attended the senior lock-in than ever before. The lock-in did not admit any latecomers after 11 P.M. and no one could leave till after 5 A.M. Aside from the food and games, the Senior lock-in included a performance by a live band and a dance contest. "Inof and the Decepticonz were the best part," said Greg Pickett.

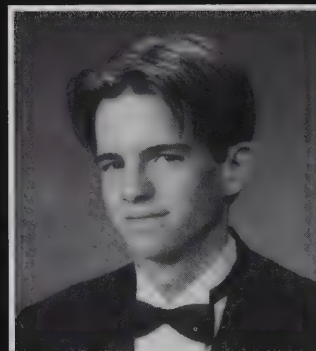

"They had verocious appetites," said Ms. Bowers, the Senior class sponsor. Jean Ngo said, "It was a great chance to bond with classmates."

GOODBYE HAT HEAD

What? I can't wear my hat anymore? The start of school brought the introduction of the no hats in school policy, which stated that no students may wear hats on school premises between 7 am and 4 pm.

"This rule was implemented to lower the rate of gang activity and to assure that students will no longer wear hats to be disrespectful to their teachers," said Assistant Principal Mr. Harry Soderberg. After an initial warning, if teachers saw a student wearing a hat, they would take it away and refused to return it until the end of the school year.

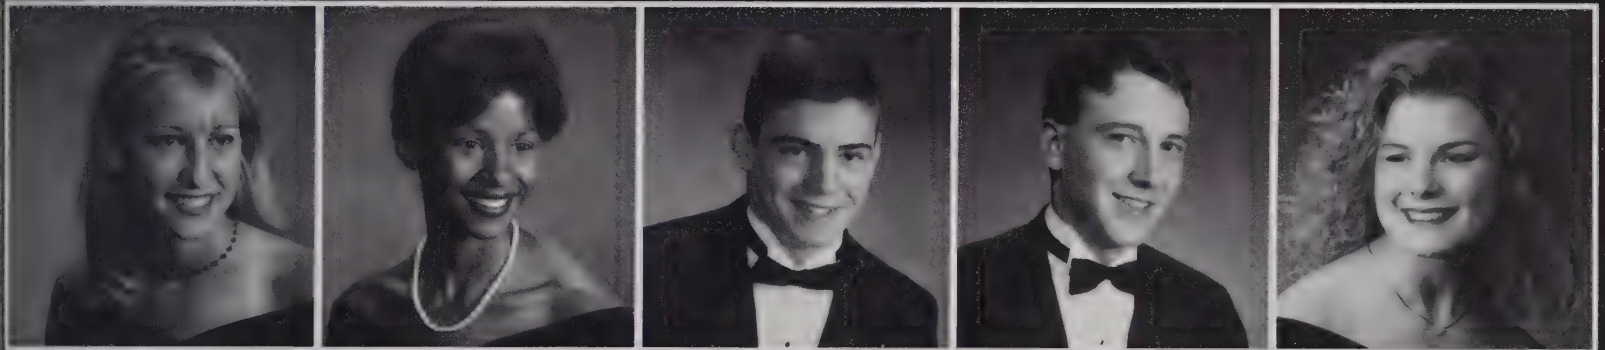

Dan Street said, "Not being able to wear hats denies the students their freedom of expression."

SKIN DEEP BEAUTY

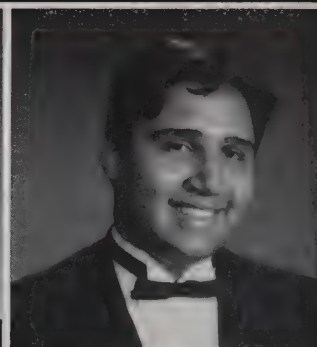

What is something that many students have but that no one except their closest friends know about? Tattoos.

The school's no tattoo policy created problems for some students, but for some a solution was easy. Ryan Brady said, "I wear shorts and a t-shirt and it isn't visible."

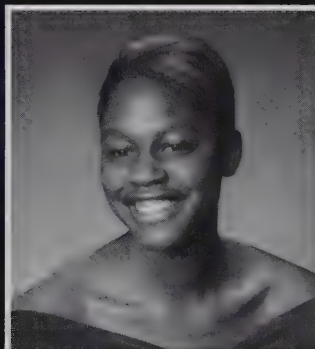

The prices for tattoos ranged from twenty to three-hundred dollars. The color, artistic detail, and size of the tattoo all played a part in the prices of tattoos. One student, who had a tattoo on her pelvic bone, said, "It's permanent and I wasn't sure if when I was thirty I would want everyone to see that I had a tattoo."

Stretching out before a ace, Rosiland Rogers squints in the light of the midday sun.

On a crazy night out with her friends, Ashley Briggs giggles at the humour of life.

Studying intently,
Jeanette Shapiro and Jenn
Creech worry about an upcoming exam.

Overwhelmed with excitement, Colette Zai cheers for the impending powder puff challenge.

Watching the game with reserved anticipation, Katy Fox wonders how the game will end.

mark

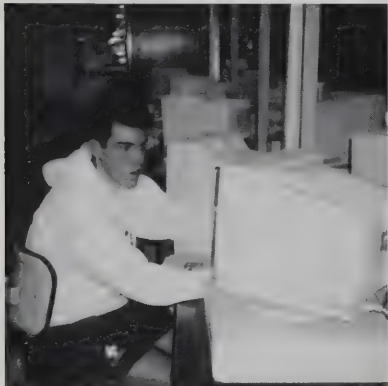

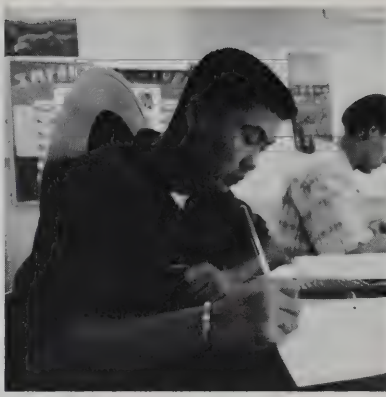

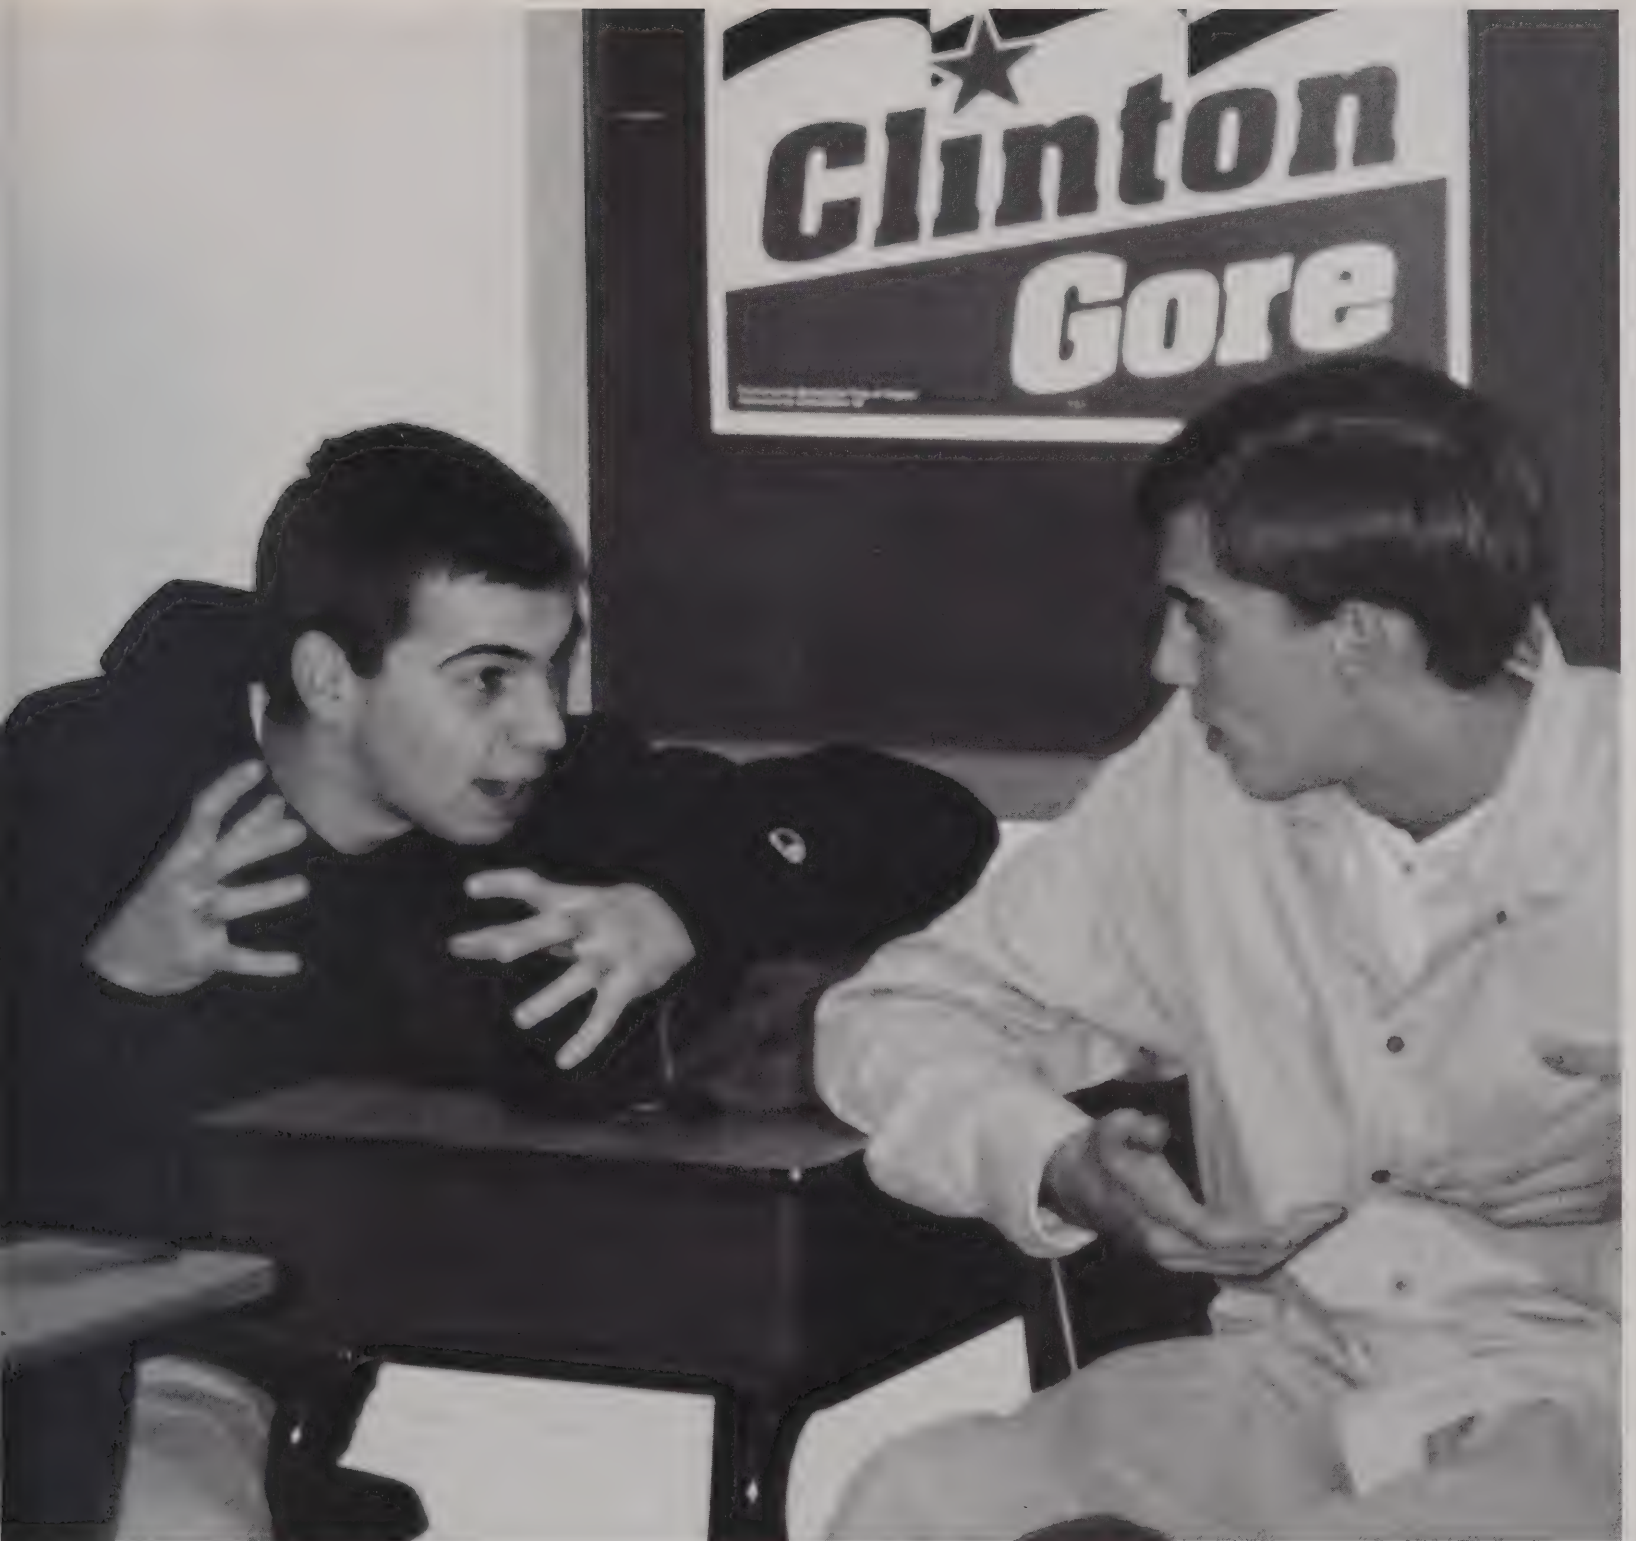

Grab it and hold on. That's what they're good for. Paws, mitts, hooks, feelers, and digits. They are never standing still. Your hands are the most active part of your body. They create artistic masterpieces and incredible stories. They fly quickly through hair and dance across keys. Hands can flex and clench in anger, greet and salute with pride. They identify who we are. The lines, contours, and shapes are the ultimate expression of our individuality. Some people use them to speak and others to hear. So use them to grab hold and let your hands Make Your Mark.

ACADEMICS

It was up to us to make the grades. As the primary focus of school, academics shaped our lives as homework filled our nights. The core classes gave us a basic schedule and a variety of electives completed the day. We learned the correct way to put our ideas on paper and at the same time tried not to burn down the Spanish, Sign Language world and the way our tutors for hours. For almost everything else.

science labs. We studied not only English, but also e, and everything else in between. We studied the Open your eyes and take a good look around. Do you see? Do you remember? The summer sizzled with surprises - from the triumphant calls of the Olympic medalists to the terrifying cries of horror resounding in Olympic Square in Atlanta. Months of quarrelsome campaigning finally came to a halt with the re-election of President Clinton and a landmark inauguration in the streets of Washington, a mere twenty minutes from our front doors. Our flickering living room screens captured thousands of viewers as homeruns and touchdowns led to broken records and new champions. Violence echoed vibrantly in our memories, with unexpected crashes, tragic victims, and the deaths of the innocent. Old stars returned to our generation to see us through the Internet, the World Wide Web, and in our own time to stop the violence, and start a new era. OUR MARK

For the past 30 years, the NFL's elite clashed for the title of football supremacy. In the 31st installment of the gridiron classic, the Green Bay Packers faced off against the New England Patriots in Super Bowl XXXI at the Superdome in New Orleans, Louisiana.

The 1996 NFL season was one full of shockers. The Carolina Panthers and the Jacksonville Jaguars, who were in their 2nd year of existence in the NFL, made it to their respective conference championship games. Nine teams lost head coaches. The Dallas Cowboys, who were the defending Super Bowl champs, faced a series of allegations such as Michael Irvin's drug use and the sexual assault accusations against teammate Erik Williams.

The game was focused around the two teams' starting quarterbacks, Drew Bledsoe of the Patriots, and MVP of the league, Brett Favre of the Green Bay Packers. It was the first Super Bowl appearance for both quarterbacks but not for their head coaches, Bill Parcells and Mike Holmgren.

"I wanted the Packers to win because they had good defense and their offense was pretty good as well," said Ajaz Zahir. During the first play of the drive for Green Bay, Brett Favre threw a pass to Andre Rison for 54 yards and the touchdown putting the Packers up 7-0 early in the first quarter. Two touchdowns by the Patriots would put them up 14-10 in the second quarter. However, in the second quarter Desmond Howard of the Green Bay Packers ran for 99 yards off a punt to score a touchdown, another Super Bowl record, and put the Packers up at halftime 24-14. Laura Mitas said, "I was going for the Patriots because they were the underdogs and they had an excellent year."

The second half belonged to Green Bay and Desmond Howard. As a Special Teams player, Howard ran for a Super Bowl record 224 yards and a touchdown that sealed the victory for the Packers.

The Packers defeated the Patriots 35-21 and Desmond Howard won the Super Bowl XXXI MVP award. Later that week, Bill Parcells would step down as the head coach of the New England Patriots to become the New York Jets head coach.

GONE BUT NOT FORGOTTEN

The AIDS Memorial Quilt is the largest on-going community arts project in the world. It stitches together the names of the deceased that people remember, and the somber walk along its hem takes you through fields of fabric commemorating more than 70,000 lives lost to AIDS.

Now weighing more than 36 tons and stretching over 12 football fields, the AIDS Memorial Quilt has been displayed only five times since the first rectangles of cloth were stitched together in 1989. Each of the 41,001 colorful panels in the quilt were made to remember the life of a person lost to AIDS. They represent the young and the old, the rich and the poor, the gay, the straight and the bisexual. The panels are as diverse as those affected by the epidemic.

AIDS is the leading cause of death among men, both gay and straight, from ages 25 to 44, and is the third leading cause of death among women ages 24 to 44. Three thousand women are infected with HIV each day and 500 women die from the disease each day. Worldwide, women are the fastest growing group of new HIV infections. The World Health Organization estimates that more than 13-15 million adults were infected with HIV in 1995; another six thousand people are infected each day. By the year 2000, the cumulative total of HIV infections in men, women, and children around the world will be 30-40 million. As the tragic disease claims more lives, the Quilt continues to grow; over fifty new memorial panels are added each week. Each display of the Quilt has a double mission: one, to celebrate the lives of those who have died and two, to educate the living about the epidemic.

Carmela Brittingham and Beverly Sacknoff took time to go see the quilt this past October on the Mall for the fifth showing of the Quilt, which took place in Washington D.C.. "More teenagers should go and see the Quilt; it's amazing," said Carmela Brittingham. "Each panel is so unique and detailed it truly says a lot about the person. Seeing the AIDS Quilt really makes you understand what a devastating disease this is and realize how many lives have been lost."

"The Quilt is unbelievable!" said Beverly Sacknoff. "I think it's great that people found a way to create a lasting memorial to those who have died, while at the same time, educating millions about HIV and AIDS."

Missy Eboch did not get to see the Quilt this past October but wishes she had. "I believe that the Memorial Quilt is a cry to the world to pay attention to the AIDS crisis. The Quilt stands for more than the tens of thousands of the people whose names are sewn into the fabric. It also stands for the sorrow, love, and hope of the people who have suffered the loss of a loved one," said Missy Eboch. "The Quilt is a beautiful work of art that pays tribute to those who are gone, and provides comfort in a time of grief to those who were left behind."

FACE TO FACE

by Kate Johnson

"When I found out that I had AIDS, I was totally stunned." One hundred and fifty students sat in silence, absorbed by the speaker and the story she had to tell. "I was expecting my test to be negative. I couldn't believe it when they told me I had full-blown AIDS."

The Face To Face program, through which people living with the AIDS virus shared their stories with students, brought a different way of educating students about AIDS than reading out of a textbook. Rachel Cronkhite said, "I thought it was a really good program. It was definitely better than when we learned about AIDS [in health and Biology] because we had real stories and real faces to back up statistics." The speakers taught some of the basic information about the AIDS virus, but mainly focused on their lives before and after being infected, and shared how they were affected by the virus. Danny Loffredo said, "Our speaker mentioned safe sex, and made it clear how important it is to be aware of AIDS." All juniors saw Face to Face through their English classes, and the option of opting-out was made available to everyone. Ms. Dian Leeper, an eleventh grade English teacher, said, "It was definitely a valuable use of class time. It was believable, caring, had details, and good information. Our speakers saw it as their mission to get the word out that you can be faithful in a marriage, heterosexual, not use drugs, or even alcohol, be a hard working normal person, and still get 'it'. The comments were so believable and really respected the conditions and took it seriously."

"It made AIDS seem more real, because I didn't know anyone with AIDS before that," said Elizabeth Sekinger.

Andi Rowe said, "I felt the Face to Face (AIDS) program was beneficial because it gave students an up close reality check of how AIDS can hit anyone, in any situation."

SHOULD GAY MARRIAGES BE LEGAL

by Jessica Kwerel

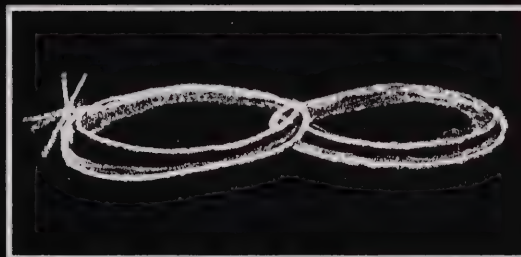

"We live in a country where individuality and uniqueness had served as a cornerstone for our prosperity, so obviously I have no grudge against homosexuals. However, that doesn't mean I necessarily agree with gay morals. Even though we live in 'the land of the free', I don't feel our country is ready for gay marriages," said Amy Klavin.

In Washington D.C., the Senate gave final congressional approval in early September to a bill that would deny federal recognition of same-sex marriages and give states the right to refuse to recognize same-sex marriages licensed in other states. Same-sex couples would also be ineligible for any federal benefits given to married couples, including Social Security payments and Medicare.

Senate supporters of the bill said it was a common-sense response to the Hawaii lawsuit dealing with legalizing gay marriages. "The traditional family has stood for 5,000 years, are we so wise today that we are ready to reject 5,000 of recorded history? I don't think so," said Senator Phil

Gramm.

In Hawaii, gay marriages are now legal. In May of 1993, responding to a lawsuit filed by three gay couples, the state Supreme Court ruled that forbidding gay couples to marry is unconstitutional unless the state government can prove that a "compelling state interest" justifies such discrimination.

National Gay and Lesbian Task Force Executive Director Melinda Paras said, "marriage is the way in which partnerships are recognized." The Defense of Marriage Act would deny that recognition to "millions of gay and lesbian Americans," she said. Paras also said she primarily faulted "right-wing religious extremists who are using this issue to try and divide our constituency." President Clinton restated that he opposes discrimination against any Americans, but the White House has said he "has long opposed same-sex marriage" and will sign the bill as promised.

The so-called Defense of Marriage Act was introduced by conservatives to head off the start of the court case that could lead to Hawaii becoming the first state to legalize same-sex marriages. Supporters of the bill said that they feared if Hawaii were free to recognize gay marriages, the Constitution would then require all other states to accept such marriages performed in the state as legal.

With one of the highest gay populations in the United States, Washington D.C. has provided the gay and lesbian community with hotlines, coalitions, support groups, and parades.

"For years I've been taught homosexuality is wrong in my religion and we can't destroy our traditional family values," said Yoon Kim. Despite opinions for both sides of the issues, Senate workers say there is going to be a dramatic increase in recognition and awareness of the gay community.

HEAVEN'S GATE

by Kate Johnson

"Planet Earth is about to be recycled. Your only chance to survive or evacuate is to leave with us." Marshall H. Applewhite, speaking on behalf of his cult, explained in one of two videotapes why he was planning a mass suicide. "To most people who would consider themselves intelligent beings, they'd say, 'Well, that's absurd. What's all this doomsday stuff? What's all this apocalyptic talk?' You know, intelligent human beings should realize that all things have their cycle. They have their season. They have their beginning, they have their end. We're not saying that planet Earth is coming to an end. We're saying that planet Earth is about to be refurbished, spaded under, and have another chance to serve as a garden for a future human civilization."

On March 26th, 39 members of the Heaven's Gate cult committed mass suicide in an attempt to enter their Kingdom of Heaven. According to material found on their internet web page and in their videotapes, the cult believed that the Hale-Bopp comet was a sign that their spacecraft had arrived to take them to the next level. Led by Marshall Applewhite, who called himself Do, the 39 cult members voluntarily took their lives with poison and drugs, and killed themselves in several shifts so that as the process continued, members could clean up after and cover the preceeding shift. The bodies were found lying in beds, dressed in plain dark clothes with large purple shrouds laid over them. The victims, half of whom were men, ranged in age from 26 to 72, although their buzz cuts and similar clothes led police to initially believe that they were all young males. Police also found packed bags with the bodies, which each contained a change of clothes and a roll of quarters.

The cult required its members to, as stated on their web page, forsake "all human ways, ties, addictions, thinking, gender behavior (sexuality), and be in the forward motion of becoming [a] new creature". Chris Donnelly said, "It's kind of scary knowing that stuff like that exists but it's the price we pay for our free society."

Do, who labeled himself "The Present Representative", believed his role to be similar to that of Jesus in the Christian Bible. Ms. Gretchen Portwood said, "I think that a lot of [the members] just needed attention, and it was the wrong kind of attention. It's scary that one person can have that much control over people."

Amanda Coolidge said, "I found it interesting because it's so different than what you normally hear about - it was almost like a movie." ABC has signed a movie deal with Heaven's Gate cult member Rio D'Angelo.

BUILDING A BRIDGE TO THE 21ST CENTURY

by Kelley Kaufman and Nerissa Lin

"I, William Jefferson Clinton, do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and will do the best of my ability to preserve, protect, and defend the constitution of the United States."

Bill Clinton, the last president of the twentieth century and the first president of a new millennium, took the oath of office on January 20th, 1997. Jason King said, "Now that he's finally gotten re-elected and will be there another four years, hopefully the Republicans will let him do the job we put him there to do: run this country."

More than 200,000 people witnessed the nation's 53rd inaugural celebration. President Clinton's 22-minute speech echoed across the Capitol Reflecting Pool and into the diverse audience representing America: young, old, black, brown, white, Republican and Democrat. Senator Warner (R-Virginia) was the inaugural committee chairman. The inauguration was a chance for many to celebrate not the victory of any one party or candidate, but as Clinton's speech indicated, the unity of a nation.

"Building a bridge to the 21st Century" echoed as the theme of the inauguration. "It is our great good fortune that time and chance have put us not only at the edge of a new century in a new millennium, but on the edge of a bright new prospect in human affairs, a movement that will define our course for decades to come," said President Bill Clinton in his inaugural Address.

Supreme Court Justice William H. Rehnquist administered the oath of office to the President after a medley of patriotic songs sung by opera singer Jessye Norman. Then, in front of 250,000 people on the Mall and countless others across the world, President Clinton addressed the issues of America, giving a glimpse of what the next four years would bring.

In his speech, Clinton said that "we must keep our democracy forever young." From the Capitol, where President Clinton delivered his address, the Lincoln Memorial was visible in the distance. It was there that the Reverend Martin Luther King Jr. delivered one of America's most famous speeches, "I Have a Dream," at a time when many blacks could not have voted for William Jefferson Clinton. Inaugural Day fell on Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday and the connection did not go unnoticed by the press.

Though the 6,000 parade participants could not start marching until after President Clinton and his family joined congressional leaders for a traditional lunch inside the Capitol, when the festive procession finally marched up Pennsylvania Avenue, the parade inspired awe in some of those in attendance. Tina Hong said, "Even though it started a little late, this year's parade was a lot better than the last one, especially with the different floats and performances."

Ranging from military bands of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines, and Coast Guard to a group of youngsters on unicycles doing the popular Macarena, consisting of tumblers, cheerleaders and synchronized rope jumpers, helicopter pilots from the Vietnam War and even Mormons in a covered wagon depicting the early settlers in Utah, the bands and the floats reflected diversity on the traditional celebration.

From the start, organizers wanted this inauguration to be more serious and modest than the first. However, this year's celebration ended up with fourteen official balls, more inaugural balls than ever. After attending two religious services in the morning, president Clinton, the First Lady, and daughter Chelsea joined nearly 13,000 other people at USAir Arena for the Presidential Inauguration Gala, a two-hour entertainment extravaganza. The crowd of tuxedoed men and gowned women paid $100 to $3,000 to attend the event, the largest single fundraiser of the inaugural celebrations. The Gala was also highlighted by the percussion section of the Woodson marching band who performed with Gloria Estefan. Even though the percussion band's performance was just one of the many features in the Presidential Inauguration, the experience was especially memorable for those who performed that night. Pat Ryan said, "It was definitely a bigger deal than I thought it was- the full house of the Arena, the breathtaking atmosphere- everyone including the performers were so excited and looking forward to the great show." Another performer agreed. Michael Rubin said, "Being the only drummer who was able to vote, I felt honored to perform for Bill Clinton, the man who I believe will do a good job for our country- it was a great experience for me."

"Clinton's inaugural address was very idealistic and optimistic towards the future of the government and the country, but it was kind of far-fetched," said Joanne Elling. Since most students were either in the middle or elementary school for the last inauguration, this year served as a chance for them to enjoy the festivities more thoroughly. Leah Kim said, "I don't remember much about the 1992 inauguration, and even though I was not able to attend the inauguration this year, I watched the whole celebration on television; it looked like a spectacular event."

President Clinton said, "As we look back at this remarkable century, we may ask, can we hope not just to follow but even to surpass the achievements of the 20th century in America and to avoid the awful bloodshed that stained its legacy?" As President Bill Clinton and Vice President Al Gore embark on their second term, we might think about that theme: what will be accomplished and what kind of legacy will be established before the start of a new millenium?

So, flipping the ever ready and raring to go radio, you try to find the sound of music, the whispers of song, the mellow melody that lulls you into a world of dreams. 93.9, 99.1, 101.1, 104.1, 105.1, and 98.7 were just a few of the local radio stations that occupied most students' preset button console. "With every trip down the road comes that never ending quest for the perfect improvisational jam session," said Craig Heggstad.

"I love classical music and I respect great songs written by artists such as Vivaldi, Stravinsky, and Beethoven. Mrs. Leeper and I try to get our students interested in such musicians so that they can develop a deep appreciation for it as they grow older," said Mr. Tim Hudenburg. Andrea Barbary said, "Even though I never thought I would enjoy classical music, I do. I listen to it along with other types of music."

"I think that there is no reason to listen to country music. It's all boring and annoying. Every song talks about the women leaving because of the men getting drunk. I prefer rock and anything that is not opera or country," said Brian Lynch. Country fans strongly disagreed and suggested listening to Deana Carter's "We Danced Anyway" or musicians such as Trace Adkins. Out of ten random students surveyed, seven said that they enjoyed listening to country music. Matt Benton said, "I like listening to a mix of things. When I'm in that 'down' mood, I just turn on the country station - it's pretty good."

Other students chose to listen to hard rock, alternative, and heavy metal groups such as Marilyn Manson, Nirvana, Rage Against the Machine, and Blood Hound Gang. "I listen to Metallica all of the time, and I think that it is a way of getting my emotions out of me," said Adam Beaver. Jenny Chow said, "I think that people who find themselves listening to this type of upbeat music with vulgar lyrics tend to have a more rebelling attitude about life." Omar Faroque said, "I think that the reason guys like this music is because of the way it portrays themselves. Guys who want to be seen as tough and mean prefer music like blaring heavy metal that they can mosh to."

"I've recorded a few songs at home and the quality isn't that bad, but I rather be in a studio," said Johnny Fink. WHODATHUNKIT?'s lead vocalist and guitarist Keith Nystrom and bass guitarist Sean Brown, Emmitt Swimming's drummer Tamer Eid, Seven Mary Three's drummer Giti Khalsa, and Modern Yesterday's lead vocalist Andrew Hellier and lead guitarist Mike Lockwood all graduated from Woodson in the early nineties. Mike Lockwood said, "Concentrate on writing your own material and delivering them with a lot of energy. When you're starting a band be aware of the business end as well. That can really take the fun out of it."

MANDATORY DRUG TESTING

by Lauren Creamer

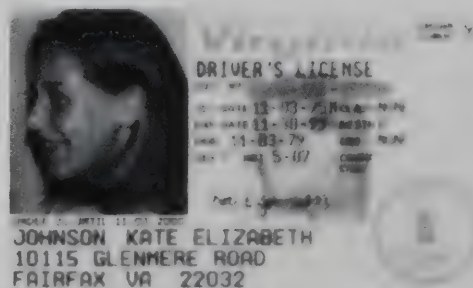

On October 19, 1996, President Bill Clinton reported that he was directing General Barry McCaffrey to design legislation that required all teens getting their drivers' licenses to take a drug test. "Licensed drivers have the right to drive without the fear of being on the road with a person who is under the influence," said William Blake.

The number of alcohol-related accidents that occurred in 1995 totaled approximately 2,200. Clubs like Mothers Against Drunk Driving and Students Against Drunk Driving helped bring the death rate down by organizing clubs at high schools to help enforce no drinking.

Kevin Hebbe said, "In laymen's terms, I think it is none of their business and it violates someone's personal business."

"The state can't require you to take their test, so they are trying to attach it to something that everyone gets to achieve the same effect," said David Richards.

Rachel Davis said, "What government officials should realize is that hardly any teenagers would be getting their licenses and that kids who use drugs know all the tricks." Requiring a drug test prior to getting your drivers' license brought about a controversial issue between teenagers and adults.

"I don't think people should be forced to take a drug test to get their license, but if they are caught driving under the influence that privilege should be taken away," said Sara Grossman.

Susan Titlow said, "I don't take drugs, so it won't affect me. Drugs affect the way you drive, so that privilege should be taken away to protect the other drivers on the road."

'79 & '97

by Arzu Dillace

A time to be born and a time to become an adult 1979 and 1997 are important years for graduating Seniors. The changes in each year not only bring forth a new Senior class but also new ideas, traditions, and rules.

Sadies, Mr. Woodson, and the Homecoming festivities, are all with-standing traditions, unaffected by time. For Sadies, the girls ask the guys, but in 1979 the girls had to chase down and catch the guy of their choice before they could ask them. During halftime of the annual junior-senior basketball game, the 10 Mr. Woodson contestants battled it out until one emerged as the winner. Now, Mr. Woodson is held in the auditorium on a Friday night, where the contestants compete in each of the categories. Homecoming was a fun time for everyone. Students showed their class spirit by participating in the Powder Puff games, Spirit Week, and added back just this year, the float decorating contests. Although the football team lost the game, Homecoming was still an important and exciting time for the classes. The sophomores won the float decorating contest, the Seniors and the Sophomores triumphed over the juniors and the freshmen, and the dance itself was a huge success.

Some of the dances that students don't get to experience now include the frequently held Sock-Hops, the Back-To-School dance, sponsored by the Student Union Club, and the formal "Sweetheart" dance, sponsored by the juniors, and held on, what else?... Valentine's Day. Now, students only have the opportunity to attend Sadie Hawkins, Homecoming, and Prom. "Dances were extremely well attended. The room would be packed with up to 1,000 people," said Mr. Clark.

While students in the class of '79 enjoyed going to the Sock-Hops, Georgetown in D.C., to the movies, or listening to records at a friend's house, the class of '97 had a more modernized idea for weekends. This included going clubbing, partying at a friend's house, going to a concert, or just enjoying a "Blockbuster Night" with friends.

Another change that has occurred since 1979 is the drop in class spirit. Back then, pep rallies were held outdoors in the football stadium and students cheered the team on and let them know that they are number one. The stands were packed and the spirit was obvious. Clubs such as the Pep Club and Pep Band encouraged the students to cheer on the team. It's not as though the class of '97 was without spirit. Spirit Week, the Powder Puff games, the class officers, and more, contributed a source of inspiration for students. But some students think spirit has been fading over the last couple of years. "Our class probably had a lot less spirit than the class of '79," said Elizabeth Hanpeter.

Some of the most popular clubs in 1979 were the Keyettes, National Honor Society (NHS), FBLA, Key Club, and the Student Union. The Keyettes had the most members with 140 students, and FBLA was second with 54 members. Students were not just allowed to join, they required try-outs, and if the student didn't make the cut, they weren't allowed to join. Now, most clubs let anyone willing join except for the honor societies. Clubs such as the Environmental Club, World as One, and Power Team didn't exist then, while Sword and Feather, Backpacking Club, Student Union, and others don't exist now.

Students in the class of '79 were able to enjoy a longer break, some extra time to sleep, and only six classes, while they only had one snow day allowed before extra days were added on to the year (less than the 3 snow days that are allowed to the county now). Breaks were 20 minutes long, five minutes longer than the break students have now. During this time, students would finish up homework, get food from the cafeteria, or just hang out at a friend's locker, similar to what students do now. Instead of the seven classes that students must take, the class of '79 only had to take six and first period began at 7:45, 25 minutes later than when first block started for students in the class of '97. Yet this late beginning didn't affect the final bell at 2:05.

The years 1979 and 1997 were equally momentous to the respective Seniors. Many members of the class of 97 were born in 1979 and graduated in 1997 (get it? 79...97!). Over the past eighteen years, not only has the senior class grown and developed, but the school itself has undergone a series of changes.

mark

Run for your life! Feet carried us from place to place fast enough to keep up with our busy schedules. We trampled new paths and stepped over road blocks. We jumped higher than ever before, over tall buildings in the way. It wasn't the size of the feet, but what you did with them that mattered. With a dance and rhythm all their own, we tried to keep up by walking, jogging, and sprinting to the lead. With tracks of sand, mud, and dust, we left our footsteps everywhere for others to follow. Although smaller than Big Foot's, our prints showed one way to Make Your Mark.

SPORTS

As spectators and as athletes, we participated in games, matches, and meets. Throughout the fall, winter, and spring, the gyms and fields echoed with the sounds of cheers, buzzers, and coaches' yells. Make Your Mark. It wasn't just a phrase, it was how we lived. Whether we were dancing, laughing, sweating, or singing, in every way we made our mark. Kicking up our bootheels, chowing down on peanuts and punch, and strutting in our flannel shirts, we marked off December 7th on the calendar, dancing the night away at SADIE'S. With "A Woman's Man" as the theme and 12 contestants trying to out do each other with skits, dances, and fashion, MR. WOODSON marked the auditorium with sounds of laughter. The SENIOR DINNER DANCE officially marked the beginning of the end of senior year. The senior video, the dinner served by underclassmen, as well as the night-long dancing, gave the Seniors the sense of the approaching graduation. Everyday and in every way we had a dedicated and hard-working staff helping BEHIND THE SCENES. From counselors to janitors to lunch room cashiers, these people truly made their mark on the school, as well as cleaning up the marks we made in the halls. As February 14th rolled around, the whole school wore red for two reasons. This date not only marked VALENTINE'S DAY, but also a tribute to Coach Red Jenkins, with PACK THE GYM NIGHT finishing out the day. Coach Jenkins decided to retire from Woodson after being with us since our founding, and the mark he left on our school will last forever. Marking up the sheet music, and marking down the lyrics, we exceeded in our MUSIC with bands, singing, or just playing instruments for our own amusement. Volunteering, relaxing, or just having fun - we showed how we made our mark with our OUTSIDE OF SCHOOL ACTIVITIES. Go ahead...

Amanna (Kate) - breadsticks with extra tomato sauce, nothing to do with Alfalfa, DC (diet coke), incognito, 1 a.m. with Steve Sault, JCC at 10 p.m., looking at my watch and I still don't care. See these?

Kate Johnson - spending our Friday nights for the past three months making this thing! orange drinks, firemen, and cowboy forever! silver still rocks! oh where, oh where could my senior superlative pictures be? we know the truth about this book...

Lur Personick - Big "D," 6th period skipping, 5th period chaos, I am Batman, divider copy-excuse me, are you mental?, visual system men, kvetching about a certain gov't teacher. Turn off the octopus!

Jo-Jo Samuels - I've gotta leave at 4:40 for Shabbat, 4:40 I've gotta go, O.K.? 4:40! What? Jo-Jo's getting bagels? Pete's coming is there anything for me to do? Quick, take the picture off the filing cabinet!

Melissa Clegg - we have another check! WE WANT YOUR BOYFRIEND! was that 700 or 900 books again? Go Florida! and don't forget, no talking in the bathroom!

Alex Nguyen - my man, don't be so violent! do you have your camera? please bring the pictures to school, NHS? mad, phat fresh, Al represent.

Kara Dowling - we just got proofs in, staying after till 8:00 p.m., right? skunky! diet coke, small head and baby hair, and most importantly for teaching us the correct way to drink coke from a bottle!

Lauren Creamer - do you ever eat? what's wrong with your fingers? could you check these names for the fifth time? diet coke of course, the ever wonderful Thad!

Dori Jacob - roll call! having a bad day? bring us food! the cropper Dori, get the cropper! crazy car rides, could you order another hundred rolls of color? lookin' at my watch...represent! Your mom. are we callin' dori at the mall?

Emily (Sigorney) Amanna - flashing the pizza man, bras go on the outside! plaid obsession, we're the same size (jeans?!). take good care of the sprouts for us! Playgirl? Sprinkles! Roll call. Poor sick girl-I'd do it, but I'd have to write it down.

Maxy Trone - molesting the editors (the pat), segall took these pictures, smelled any good shoes lately? you stayed after and did work of your own will, wow! megan, chorus, what? Who farted? Teen wolf, Clifford the Big Red Dog.

Monica Hunter - hook me up! how long is this editor's meeting going to be, cause I gotta go! great thigh shots and facial expressions you dance queen, you!

To our staff - A huge thank you! We might of checked your picas, your cropping, and your pictures, but you're the ones that took the pictures, did the layouts, and truly made the book what it is...amazing!

Ms. Lloyd - We've decided Rich can have you back. Yeah, we'll be out by 7; what, you want us to plan? So which one of us is conservative, the one in the cardigan wants silver, the one with the bra on the outside wants green. Thanks for taking the chance on the tongue photo- fight the power! You've been a wonderful mommy to us, and we know you'll be a great one to your own.

A special thanks to Ms. Bowers - could we go do yearbook during english? Mr. Whalen - staying up late counting superlatives!

Dr. Miller - You da man; Ms. Lowery and Ms. Davis; Our faithful Ung - Are you still here? You should go home! Mr. Stroud - always giving us something to talk about; Pete and Lori - thanks for waiting, and waiting and waiting for those pages and proofs, and giving us the manual, the color chart, and the envelopes for the fifth time. And of course Segall - what would we do without you?

Wait, we always do without you....sized photos? Moto Photo - draining our funds of about $600 dollars.

Love,
Melanie
& Shayna

Shayna - I worked that Hamburger font into the book after all! UNDERwear! Do you think Ms. Bowers will mind? He's winking again! No more drama layouts and yes, we do need to include band! I think we need to go to visual systems, they look lonely! Just don't say that word!

Melanie - He winked at me, again! Silver? Suck my...never mind! Your mom! I will learn to make phone calls on my own. Man, I got pee. Can I have your salt? Don't say "I'm sorry!" Little elves make the yearbook, remember? We've got a problem...

Colophon

Ring ring! The colophone's calling - can someone answer it?

We didn't let Melanie use Hamburger, but we did use Copa Cabanana, Lithos, Jiffy, Joulliard, New Berolina MT, New York Deco Plain, Palatino, Pepita, Punch Label, and Script Mono Bold. We almost didn't use purple spot color because it's a girl color and then we realized - hey! We're all girls - even Alex and Max! So we went with Tempo 527 Royal Purple, Tempo 185 Fire Engine Red, and Tempo 287 Royal Blue. Our pantone paper from Visual Systems is blue; we don't know the specific name because Melanie, Shayna, Laura, Emily, and Dori were too busy looking at the cute guys.

The Make Your Mark book was published by Jostens publishing company and Pete Griffin was our wonderful representative who picked up our pages and allowed us to change the cover four times.

Ms. Lloyd (aka Mommy), our wonderful sponsor, was also in charge of boogie man patrol.

I hate Kate...ha ha, you'll never know which one!

Brad Hummel's mother gave written permission for his tattoo being pictured in the yearbook as did Ian St. Clair's mother and father for his tongue piercing picture. All the pictures were taken by the Cavalier staff or Segall Majestic photographers. Top 10 lists in the sports section from the individual teams and coaches were compiled by the staff as well as the bullets in the student life section. The pictures in the photo layouts at the end of the book were taken by Kate Amanna, Shayna Maskell, Laura Personick, Kara Dowling, and Jenny Forrester (see Laura Personick if your name is not included).

If you're ever lonely, say around 8:00 at night...pop by the yearbook room and say hi to Kara and Lauren!
